

1-the depth of the dom tree is 2 levels :

element depth:

html=0,head=1,title=2,body=1,h1=2,h2=2,p=2

2-The paragraphs appears to be split apart.

DOM Tree:

```
body
└─ h1
   │
   └─ h2
      │
      └─ p
         │
         └─ pid="point1"
            │
            └─ h2
               │
               └─ p
                  │
                  └─ h2
                     │
                     └─ p
                        │
                        └─ h1
                           │
                           └─ h2
                              │
                              └─ p
                                 │
                                 └─ h2
                                    │
                                    └─ p
                                       │
                                       └─ h1
                                          │
                                          └─ h2
                                             │
                                             └─ p
                                                │
                                                └─ h2
                                                   │
                                                   └─ p
```

3- The attribute target="_blank" allows links to open on a new tab.

4- The link takes me to the last H2 element on the first file.